

Extending a Strong Educational Tradition to the San Joaquin Valley

UC Extension: California's Commitment to Adult Learners

Innovative, accessible, and relevant education that helps adults achieve their personal and professional goals is a century-old tradition for the University of California. One of the world's largest providers of continuing education, UC Extension as a whole enrolls 500,000 Californians in approximately 17,000 courses each year.

UC Berkeley Extension: Educating You to Be Your Best

The first University of California Extension program, UC Berkeley Extension has been bringing Berkeley's educational excellence to the broader community since 1891, enhancing careers and improving lives. Each year, college-educated professionals can choose from 1,600 UC Berkeley Extension courses, including 130 available online.

UC Merced: A Twenty-First Century University

The newest member of the University of California educational system, UC Merced became the first new American research university of the twenty-first century when it opened its doors in 2005. Like other University of California campuses, UC Merced serves the needs of a diverse population and is committed to education, research, and public service.
